CAN HAVE CLUB HERE

O. M. Barnett, Founder of Sedalia Organization, Sees Success.

Orville M. Barnett, University atorney, thinks that the people of Columbia are of the type who would most enjoy a country club and make it a success. Mr. Barnett was one of the founders of the Sedalia Country Club twelve years ago and remained a member until he came to Columbia a year ago last March.

"Our beginning in Sedalia was a very modest one." said the attorney. We used the fair grounds for our golf links, so it was only necessary to buy a lot for our house. The land and house together cost us $6,000 and we raised the money by issuing stock at $25 a share.

"Six years later we sold our house will speak to the Commercial Club on and lot for exactly what we had paid "The Benefit of the Public Library to for it and bought sixty acres of land. at $150 an acre not far from our old ite. We then put up a $12,000 club except $5,000 of the total expenditure of $21,000. The initiation fee is $25 and annual dues are $25. The club's membership is usually about one hundred.

"I don't think that too much emphasis should be laid upon athletics or there is danger that the club will be a benefit only to golf and tennis players. The Sedalia Country Club of Journalism, will speak on "Adver- arranges for dances, card parties and
